Način i mesto poučavanja	Intensive course. Belgrade Theological Seminary, Bore Markovića 11, Belgrade
Prisutnost	Compulsory.
Predavač	Karen Holford, MA, MSc
Metod poučavanja	The course will be taught mostly by lecture, discussion, group work and skills practice.
Sadržaj predmeta	Biblical foundations and principles for pastoral care will be explored, together with some Biblical frameworks for understanding how relationships are strengthened, helped and healed. Students will learn a simple model for listening to others with compassion, which is at the heart of their pastoral care. They will learn skills for supporting people through conflict and the process of forgiveness, helping themselves and others to find emotional balance, understanding family dynamics, and supporting people through the life-cycle of their family (such as marriage, parenting and bereavement). They will also learn how to understand and respond to mental illness, domestic violence, and how to help someone who is contemplating suicide.
Rezultati poučavanja	Students will understand that pastoral care needs to be embedded in everything that a pastor does. His/her work, interpersonal interactions, teaching, preaching, prayers, personal spiritual life, and even his/her family relationships, are all part of creating a healthy and caring church community where members share the work of caring for each other. They will develop their understanding of many issues that they will face in pastoral care contexts, such as troubled relationships, conflict, forgiveness, mental illness, and grief. They will learn a range of simple and practical skills to help them minister to their congregations and communities in compassionate and supportive ways.
